

The Global Peace Operations Initiative (GPOI) program at the Center for Civil Military Relations (CCMR) helps build sustainable and indigenous peacekeeping training capacities in US partner countries so they can better contribute to United Nations and other regional peacekeeping operations.

Competencies:

- Stability operations and peacekeeping training
- Institution development and capacity building

< Participants engage in an exercise involving UN mission and force structure during a MET in Tokyo, Japan.

The GPOI program helps to enhance coordination and collaboration between various US and other contributor countries' diplomatic and assistance efforts, to include providing support to deploying units (e.g. technical assistance and pre-deployment training).

GPOI's courses are offered as:

1) In Res - In-residence offering, where participants travel to our headquarters in Monterey, California. These multinational courses are held on-demand.

2) MET - Mobile education team, where CCMR instructor(s) travel to meet participants in their home countries.

3) Regional - Where courses are tailored to meet the needs of a specific region.
